

KILLER WRITING PROMPTS III: THE REVENGE

You thought you'd escaped... but the nightmare continues!

Enjoy another collection of 22 slices of inspiration for your fevered imagination.

The good news is you've won the grand prize. The bad news is that you can't give it back.

A package arrives in the mail, containing photos of you – taken throughout the past few days, without your knowledge – and a hand-written note that says "YOUR TURN."

A flash of pain jolts you awake – but you're no longer lying in bed... you're standing next to it, watching yourself sleep.

The boat was never supposed to go out this far, but the tide was stronger than expected – and something has pulled the captain into the depths.

This should have been a relaxing camping trip – just the two of you, getting away from it all. But then they showed up.

A new brand of vegetable is having a horrifying effect on the people of your town.

A ghost tour in a dilapidated prison becomes much more authentic than anyone could have imagined.

The owner of your local children's daycare is much, much older than she looks... and so is the shocking secret behind her apparent youth.

You thought you'd escaped the clutches of the cult that once counted you amongst their most senior devotees... but your departure was their plan all along.

Every time a writer finishes his latest book, the manuscript disappears... and a different author publishes it the next day.

Lately, you've felt like your thoughts aren't exactly your own. When there's a knock at your front door, you find out why.

There's something monstrous in the crawl space beneath your home.

When a mysterious sound drives everyone in her apartment building into murderous psychosis, a deaf woman must try to survive amidst the chaos.

Among the abandoned houses on the street, this one was different: the doors and windows had been bricked up. And for a good reason.

There was only ever one rule: when they call, you answer. Today, however, you missed the phone.

The resort came highly recommended for its luxury, with an exclusive price to match. But what was a relaxing getaway by day became something much different at night.

They know what you caught in that photograph – and they want it erased at any cost.

You're looking forward to getting your foot in the door in the film industry with your first job as an on-set runner. But something is very wrong with this particular film, and your job title soon becomes far more literal than expected.

You thought all was forgiven and the weekend getaway was a return to normalcy. But your friends had other plans.

The maniac chasing you isn't the only thing you have to worry about – because it's hard to tell whether his previous victims are trying to help or hinder your escape.

It looks like the entire world has fallen away from the outside of your home. There's nothing there anymore, except for the ring of figures that now stand watch. But they couldn't be moving closer, could they? Not when there's no ground for them to walk on?

A man opens fire on the patrons of a restaurant while you're there enjoying dinner with your spouse. But the attacker doesn't want to rob the place – he says he's trying to save the world.